Human trafficking is a burning problem for mankind since ages, and this is truer in case of the part of the world that we live in, i.e. northern part of West Bengal. Moreover, the study of politics is never complete without having a fair idea of without human sufferings and their causes and reactions to it. In this context, we believe this course on human trafficking will immensely benefit our students both in short and long run.

Duration: 30 hours.

Objectives:

1. To bring about awareness and provide comprehensive understanding about human trafficking amongst the students.
2. Develop functional understanding and coordination among learners about various stakeholders/ agencies associated with the process of human trafficking directly or indirectly.
3. To prepare well informed citizens who can work in and work with the government agencies, Anti-Human Trafficking Units, civil society organizations, paramilitary and military personnel, doctors, psychologists, lawyers, judges, and corporate sectors so that they are able to prevent, rehabilitate and re-integrate trafficked victims.
4. To educate and motivate the learners about establishing Human Trafficking Clubs in their family groups, society and institutions and create models of Community Policing in their Area.

'Historical Foundation of Education' course, convened at the Department of Education in TPMM from April 18th to April 25th, 2022, served as a pivotal platform for exploring the profound impact of history on educational systems. Keynote presentations provided insights into how historical contexts have influenced educational philosophies, curriculum development, and educational policies over time. Participants engaged in vibrant discussions on topics such as the role of education in social change, the impact of colonialism on global education, and the contributions of marginalized communities to educational reform movements. Collaborative dialogues underscored the significance of historical literacy for educators and policymakers in navigating contemporary challenges and promoting educational equity. Overall, the course provided a comprehensive examination of the Historical Foundation of Education, inspiring attendees to critically reflect on the past to inform and shape the future of education.

Duration: 30 hours

উদ্দেশ্য-

- জীববৈচিত্র্যের গুরুত্ব সম্পর্কে শিক্ষার্থীদের অবগত করা
- জীববৈচিত্র্যের প্রয়োজনীয়তা সম্পর্কে অবগত করা
- জীববৈচিত্র্যের বিপদগুলিকে চিনিয়ে দেওয়া এবং জীব বৈচিত্র্যের অবলুপ্তির কারণগুলি উদ্ঘাটন করা।
- বিপন্ন প্রজাতিগুলি চিহ্নিত করা
- জীববৈচিত্র্যের সংরক্ষণ ও তার কারণগুলিকে জানিয়ে দেওয়া
- জীববৈচিত্র্য সংরক্ষণের সম্ভাব্য কৌশলসমূহ সম্পর্কে অবগত করা।
- ভারতবর্ষের কিছু বিপন্ন প্রজাতি ও তাদের সংরক্ষণ বিষয়ে অবহিত করা।

Course Objectives: The course on "Alternative Energy and its Application," hosted by the Department of Geography at Thakur Panchanan Mahila Mahavidyalaya, is designed to offer students a comprehensive understanding of various renewable energy sources and their practical applications. Through this course, students will explore alternative energy sources such as solar, wind, hydroelectric, biomass, and geothermal energy, along with emerging technologies like tidal and wave energy. They will learn about the principles behind these renewable energy sources, their advantages over conventional fossil fuels, and their potential to mitigate climate change and reduce dependence on non-renewable resources. Furthermore, the course will delve into the practical aspects of harnessing and integrating alternative energy sources into the existing energy infrastructure, including grid integration, energy storage, and policy frameworks. By the end of the course, students will be equipped with the knowledge and skills necessary to contribute to the transition towards a sustainable and resilient energy future.

Course Achievement: The "Alternative Energy and its Application" course, hosted by the Department of Geography at Thakur Panchanan Mahila Mahavidyalaya, has achieved remarkable success in equipping students with the knowledge and skills needed to navigate the rapidly evolving landscape of renewable energy sources. Students who have completed the course have gained a comprehensive understanding of various alternative energy sources, including solar, wind, hydroelectric, biomass, and geothermal energy, along with innovative technologies like tidal and wave energy. This understanding has enabled them to explore diverse applications of alternative energy across different sectors, from residential and commercial to industrial and agricultural. Additionally, students have learned about the importance of sustainable energy practices in mitigating climate change and reducing reliance on finite fossil fuels. Through hands-on projects and practical experiences, they have developed the expertise to design, implement, and manage alternative energy solutions tailored to specific needs and contexts. Overall, the course has empowered students to become catalysts for positive change in the transition towards a more sustainable and renewable energy future.

stratification in educational access, while workshops provided practical strategies for implementing sociological principles to foster inclusivity and equity in schools. Attendees actively debated topics such as the impact of socioeconomic factors on student achievement and the dynamics of power within educational institutions. Moreover, discussions underscored the importance of community engagement and ongoing professional development for educators to navigate complex social dynamics effectively. Ultimately, the course underscored the necessity of incorporating sociological perspectives into education to address systemic barriers and promote educational equity, serving as a catalyst for innovative approaches to teaching and learning.

Course Description:

Birding is a self-paced, add-on course that has been designed for beginning to intermediate birders and wildlife lovers. Birds have, through the centuries, been an integral part of the human experience. They awe us with their beauty, their feats of endurance, strength, and memory. They serve as critical pollinators and consume immense quantities of certain insect pests. They also serve as important sentinels of the health of our ecosystems that are critical to the survival of the human species. Every year millions of bird watchers use binoculars and spotting scopes to study birds more closely and rightly so. In this course, learners will be provided with information, tools, and resources to help them enjoy birding and wildlife diversity. Fields trip to Sagardighi will be included to allow participants to practice class content with support from the instructors.

Total hours of classes: 30 Hours

Time allotted for each class: 2 hours(1 hour for theoretical and 1 hour for Hands-on Experience)
